

S.A.T. PREP COURSES

Studies demonstrate that consistent study in a challenging academic program; together with extensive outside reading, is the best preparation for scholastic aptitude tests. Score improvement is also modestly affected by repeat testing. Special courses and S.A.T. Prep programs may help students build self-confidence and “Test-wisdom”, but in only a few cases do they result in significant score increases that can be attributed to that program.

Counselors do not endorse or condemn the practice of taking these special programs and so do not recommend any specific program. In a few instances where a student’s scores seem to be significantly lower than the academic record, the test-taking skills addressed by special programs may be helpful. Available brochures on some of these programs can be picked up in the guidance office.
